

What is the Fellowship

The Executive Fellowship in Innovation Health Leadership is a year-long cohort-based program that develops both the mindset and skills necessary for participants to accelerate innovation within their home organizations.

The EFIHL includes a combination of:

Four multi-day immersions at industry-leading institutions and online content from innovative thought leaders

Mentorship and advising from renowned innovation faculty on developing individual innovation projects

Part of the EFIHL experience may be applicable toward graduate degree credit in Health Innovation or Global Management

Who are our Fellows?

We bring together senior leaders from around the world to develop critical thinking about new approaches to optimize quality, cost, access and the environment of healthcare. The EFIHL takes an interprofessional approach, with Fellows benefiting from the diverse skills and experiences of their peers. Fellows are comfortable challenging the status quo, visioning potential and striving to actualize possibility. They tend to be bold and outcome-driven leaders, striving to advance innovative environments or micro-climates for themselves and employees.

One Fellowship. A Global Conversation.

EFIHL immersions highlight innovation leaders in a variety of organizations and fields. These experiences build upon the program content to illustrate innovation leadership in action. 2018 Cohort Immersions will be held on:
